Summary

I am a seasoned healthcare professional with a diverse background in pharmacy, supply chain management, and e-commerce. My journey began with intensive training in community pharmacies during university, followed by managing a course focused on over-the-counter diseases. As the Supply Manager for Medicines and Medical Supplies at Alhelal Military Hospital, I efficiently handled logistics for five partitions, refining my organizational and managerial skills in a critical healthcare setting. Transitioning to El-Ezaby Pharmacy, I served as a community pharmacist before assuming roles in call center operations and e-commerce, contributing to the industry's digital transformation.

Before my international endeavors in Saudi Arabia, I dedicated nearly a year to a governmental position at Al Abasyia Chest Hospital, specializing in tuberculosis pharmacy. During this period, I played a crucial role in the supply of various types of corona vaccines to the Egyptian population, underscoring my commitment to public health and crisis management. In my current position at Al Nahdi Medical Company in Saudi Arabia, I continue to leverage my extensive experience to enhance patient care and optimize pharmacy operations. Simultaneously, I am expanding my skill set by learning programming at Almdrsa, where I've gained proficiency in Python, HTML, and CSS fundamentals. This unique blend of pharmaceutical expertise and technological acumen positions me at the forefront of innovation in healthcare, poised to make significant contributions to the evolving landscape of pharmacy services.
